

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A telecommunications system having a software dispatcher is provided for delivering messages between dispatcher clients, i.e., software subsystems that may 5 be in the same process, a different process, or on a different machine. The dispatcher manages a pool of threads to balance the workload. The dispatcher can process both synchronous and asynchronous messages by dispatching the message to all registered subsystems in order of their registered priority.

00642696-121900